Methodology Overview

CALEA serves as the premier credentialing association for public safety agencies and provides accreditation services for law enforcement organizations, public safety communication centers, public safety training academies, and campus security agencies. The standards are promulgated by a board of 21 commissioners, representing a full spectrum of public safety leadership. The assessment process includes extensive self-assessment, annual remote web-based assessments, and quadrennial site-based assessments. Additionally candidate agencies are presented to the Commission for final consideration and credentialing.

CALEA Accreditation is a voluntary process and participating public safety agencies, by involvement, have demonstrated a commitment to professionalism. The program is intended to enhance organization service capacities and effectiveness, serve as a tool for policy decisions and management, promote transparency and community trust, and establish a platform for continuous review.

CALEA Accreditation is the Gold Standard for Public Safety Agencies and represents a commitment to excellence.

Law Enforcement Accreditation

CALEA standards reflect the current thinking and experience of Law Enforcement practitioners and researchers. Major Law Enforcement associations, leading educational and training institutions, governmental agencies, as well as Law Enforcement executives internationally, acknowledge CALEA's Standards for Law Enforcement Agencies© and its Accreditation Programs as benchmarks for professional law enforcement agencies.

Site-Based Assessment Review:

From 10/28/2019 to 10/30/2019, William Welch/Rae Ferguson visited the agency following a consultation with the chief executive officer regarding critical issues impacting the organization since the last assessment. These issues were identified as:

- Retention And Recruitment - The most significant issue facing the Keene Police Department is recruitment and retention of qualified personnel. The agency is currently down more the 12% of it workforce and has limited minority representation. The Agency has worked diligently with the City Human Resources on new hiring incentives. The goal is to attract candidates from heavier populated areas of the State and certified police officers from in State or out of State. Incentives include monetary bonuses for completion of agency goals, extra vacation leave and relocation assistance.
- Use Of Force - The agency has an excellent Use of Force Policy coupled with continuous training around the Use of Force continuum and annual Firearms training. Over the last assessment period the department was involved in 4155 Custodial arrest resulting in 228 Use of Force reports, which means the agency uses force less then .05% of the time.
- Criminal Investigation And Criminal Intelligence - Detectives do not have investigation specializations, and are assigned a balance of types of investigations. The lieutenant does recognize that individual detectives are more versed on certain types of investigations and will try to assign investigations based on demonstrated skills whenever possible.

The agency is fortunate to have a forensic interviewer assigned to the division, who primarily manages juvenile sexual assault cases. She works closely with the Cheshire County Child Advocacy Center to assist with the provision of services and resources to assist in the recovery of victims.

- Community Engagement - The forensic interviewer detective is an energetic and enthusiastic participant in fundraising events. She actively recruits officers and other staff involvement. Often, she spearheads fundraising events that raise money dedicated to the provision of services within the community. Examples include procuring backpacks and school supplies for children whose families cannot afford supplies, Beards for Bucks, Toys for Tots, and a Christmas program that includes firefighters and children shopping for the holidays.

Another successful community outreach program of the agency is the presentation of active shooter training that initially began in schools, and is in its tenth year. By word of mouth throughout the City, corporations, businesses both large and small, churches, professional associations, and numerous other organizations began asking for the training. Requests for the program are at an all time high, including seventy-five presentations last year. In addition, the same organizations request to program when new employees , volunteers, or staffers come on board. The presentation clearly has a positive outcome for participants.

A significant outreach of the agency includes the assignment of a patrol officer as the liaison the Keene State College. This officer works in conjunction with the college administration to identify possible concerns of students as well as nearby residents.

- Property And Evidence - The agency has a robust evidence storage area. It is well organized and clean. Evidence is tracked in the records management system. All high-risk items are secured separately in safes, and lockers inside a locked fence in the room. Clear evidence bags are used that provide an additional layer of security when conducting inventories, inspections, and audits.

During the Site-Based Assessment Review, the assessment team conducted 12 interviews regarding the topical areas previously defined. The interviews were with agency members and members of the community. The approach not only further confirmed standards adherence, but also considered effectiveness measures, process management and intended outcomes.

COMMUNITY PROFILE

Keene was originally founded in about 1732 as Upper Ashuelot and was granted a charter of incorporation in April of 1753 by Governor Wentworth of New Hampshire, and was re-named the town Keene. In March of 1874 a new municipal charter was adopted, and Keene was re-chartered as a city. Today Keene serves as the county seat for Cheshire County, the home to Keene State College (the former Normal School), the commercial and industrial hub of southwestern New Hampshire, and home to approximately 25,000 people.

Glass and brick production have passed into history, and major employers now include The Cheshire Medical Center, Smith Medical Systems, Timken Super Precision, Janos Technologies, Markem-Image Corporation, CS Wholesale Grocers, and Liberty Mutual and National Grange Mutual Insurance. Employment, church, education, shopping, restaurants, and entertainment draw thousands of people daily, keeping Keene an active and vibrant community. The City government operates under a strong City Manager who is responsible for the day-to-day administration of city operations, including hiring and firing of personnel. The City Manager reports to the Mayor and City Council.

AGENCY HISTORY

In the early years, public safety in Keene (or Upper Ashuelot) was provided by militia and provincial troops and focused more on protecting the population from the French and their Indian allies. Keene appointed its first three constables in 1806 who dealt with the vices of drinking, gambling, and horseracing. By 1825, replicating portions of a system implemented in Portsmouth, Keene adopted a new model of policing and appointed its first six police officers. It was not until 1864 when municipal records identify a Chief of Police, Alfred S. Davis, drawing an annual salary of $50.00.

The year Keene became a city, 1874, was very significant to the police department. The new city charter gave a defined structure to the department, a budget, and a section in the annual report. It also established the office of the City Marshall as the chief executive officer of the department, and so it would remain for almost 100 years. As time progressed, so did the department. Radios, motor vehicles, telecommunications, and a host of technological, legal and social innovations would establish a pattern of constant self-assessment and improvement in the Keene Police Department and law enforcement, generally.

The Keene Police Department of the 21st century is a general service municipal police department. The department employs a Police Chief and two Captains who oversee two divisions, the Field Operations Division and the Administrative Services Division. The Field Operations Division includes the Bureaus of Uniformed Patrol and Criminal Investigations, which provide the patrol and investigative functions critical to municipal law enforcement. In addition to the formal bureaus within the Field Operations Division, the Division Captain also oversees special teams, which include the Tactical Team, the Honor Guard, the Collision Analysis Team and the College Liaison Officer. The Administrative Services Division includes the Bureau of Special Services (property management, animal / traffic light control, community events planning, and community services officer), the Bureau of Prosecution, Bureau of Records, and Parking Services. This division is also responsible for recruiting, training, facilities, quartermaster functions, and accreditation. The police station, now twelve years old, is located at 400 Marlboro Street. There are two sub-stations, one at Keene High School for the School Resource Officer and one at Keene State College for the College Liaison officer.

AGENCY STRUCTURE AND FUNCTION

The major functions of the Police Department are established by City Code and include the responsibility to enforce laws, investigate crimes, and prosecute cases in court, be prepared to respond to all types of emergency situations ranging from hostage situations to major disasters, oversee downtown public parking facilities and operations, provide animal and traffic light control services, educate the community in the law, crime prevention, and strategies on how to reduce and prevent crime on both a personal and business level.

AGENCY SUCCESSES

The Agency maintains an increased police presence in the downtown area to help improve the perception of safety. Select and procure a police K9 to be paired with our new handler and achieve USPCA Patrol Dog certification or the equivalent. Continue established partnerships with other city departments to deal effectively and mutually with quality of life and life safety issues. Continue to integrate community policing concepts into the patrol division with the concept that every sworn officer is a Community Policing Officer. Remain current with the national conversations that are taking place with respect to re-thinking what our nation's Law Enforcement Mission will look like in the future, while ensuring our own processes, practices, and goals remain in line.

FUTURE ISSUES FOR AGENCY

Continually review and address recruiting, hiring and retention practices in a timely manner to retain our certified officers.

Fill police officer vacancies with the best candidates possible. Hiring 3 to 4 new police officers would be ideal in order to fulfill our funded positions.

Continue with the on-going hiring process of a qualified full time police dispatchers.

Provide up to date, value oriented instruction on the safe and effective use of issued weapons, both lethal and non-lethal, and address matters pertaining to the use of physical and deadly force to ensure compliance with State laws, best training practices, applicable case law, and the National perspective. This will be done in concert with results from the Departments annual Use of Force and Pursuit reports, as well as feedback from training iterations and public comment as necessary.

SITE-BASED ASSESSMENT

Planning and Methodology:

The agency is being impacted by the retention and recruitment of qualified officers. The agency has installed several initiatives and incentives to maintain current staffing levels and increase recruits with such things as signing bonuses and relocation assistance. The agency is located in a rural part of the state and competes with more populated regions.

Community involvement was strong function of the agency, working with local businesses, Keene State College, and civic organizations. Several interviews were arranged by the agency for the assessment team to interact with representatives from the various community partners, which verified just how much the police department is involved with the community it serves.

The agency had identified areas that needed improvement, one was storage and security of larger items, temporary measures had been put in place which satisfied standards, a more permanent solution was already planned and should be implemented within the next few months.

Retention and Recruitment

The most significant issue facing the Keene Police Department is recruitment and retention of qualified personnel. The agency is currently down more the 12% of it workforce and has limited minority representation.

One of the major problems for the recruitment effort is the rural location of the City of Keene, located in the western part of the State isolates prospective candidates from the more populated and attractive destinations within the State of New Hampshire. The Agency has worked diligently with the City Human Resources on new hiring incentives. The goal is to attract candidates from heavier populated areas of the State and certified police officers from in State or out of State.

Incentives include monetary bonuses for completion of agency goals, extra vacation leave and relocation assistance. The Chief is moving forward with a plan to help bolster the efforts to recruit minorities, such as meeting with minority leaders, one such leader is Dotti Morris who is the Associate Vice President for Diversity and Inclusion at Keene State College. Other plans include reaching out to minority students at local colleges for input and suggestions. A concentrated effort on a more focused awareness through social media and the agency website to make prospective candidates more knowledgeable about opportunities offered by the Keene Police Department.

Standards Issues:

N/A

Suggestions

The Agency needs to continue it's effort to implement a short and long term strategy to recruit and retain qualified people especially targeting it minority population. The use of social media will make prospective candidates more knowledgeable about opportunities offered by the Keene Police Department.

Use of Force

The agency has an excellent Use of Force Police coupled with continuous training around the Use of Force continuum and annual Firearms training. Over the last assessment period the department was involved in 4155 Custodial arrests resulting in 228 Use of Force reports, which means the agency uses force less then .05% of the time. The agency prides itself on the amount of training not only on Use of Force but de-escalation of incident that otherwise might have resulted in the Use of Force. The Use of Force is reported on a inhouse form developed by the department. The form is very user friendly with check off boxes to indicate type of force used, weapon used, Dog deployed, injury to either the officer or suspect etc. The form is a supplement to the actual police report, once the form is completed its reviewed by a supervisor and forwarded up the chain and command where its determined whether further action such as policy review or officer action needs to be taken.

Standards Issues:

N/A

Suggestions

A suggestion that the agency consider the Use of Form be approved by not only the line Supervisor but also a division Commander of Command Staff. The form is reviewed by Command Staff anyway so having that additional approval would issue some checks and balances.

Criminal Investigation and Criminal Intelligence

While the agency experiences manpower shortages, criminal investigations has a 35% vacancy of detectives. Agency philosophy is to mentor and teach interested patrol officers to manage cases themselves, unless the investigation is of a serious and complicated nature, where time would be a factor. Additionally, patrol officers who are interested in processing crime scenes are given on-the-job training leading to increased proficiency in forensics. In this way, officers are placed in positions to succeed, and to increase their level of investigative skills. The practice also helps to instill a sense of pride and ownership in bringing investigations to conclusion. The outcome for the agency assists in the management of cases assigned to detectives, as well as developing officers for future assignments.

Detectives do not have investigation specializations, and are assigned a balance of types of investigations. The lieutenant does recognize that individual detectives are more versed on certain types of investigations and will try to assign investigations based on demonstrated skills whenever possible.

The agency is fortunate to have a forensic interviewer assigned to the division, who primarily manages juvenile sexual assault cases. She works closely with the Cheshire County Child Advocacy Center to assist with the provision of services and resources to assist in the recovery of victims.

The criminal intelligence function is managed by the criminal investigations' lieutenant. Criminal intelligence is a responsibility of all agency staff, who route any statutorily relevant information to the lieutenant. Electronic intelligence is held by the lieutenant in password protected files. Intelligence related to potentially dangerous individuals is also maintained in files held by the SWAT supervisors.

Agency personnel use confidential informants to conduct drug purchases due to the fact that most officers are known in the city of Keene. The administration captain maintains informant files. Any detective or officer developing an informant formant that is going to work must first have the approval of the criminal investigations' lieutenant, who notifies the captain, and the informant package will be completed. No other personnel have access to the informant files.

Standards Issues:

No issues

Suggestions

Strengthen the vetting of information and more frequent purging of criminal intelligence.

Instead of criminal intelligence being held in two separate divisions, consolidate the function where one designated criminal intelligence officer has sole responsibility for vetting, storage, and dissemination.

Community Engagement

The forensic interviewer detective is an energetic and enthusiastic participant in fundraising events. She actively recruits officers and other staff involvement. Often, she spearheads fundraising events that raise money dedicated to the provision of services within the community. Examples include procuring backpacks and school supplies for children whose families cannot afford supplies, Beards for Bucks, Toys for Tots, and a Christmas program that includes firefighters and children shopping for the holidays. These children once identified are given an amount of money to purchase gifts for family members and something for themselves. She reports that the results have been rewarding and the program is expanding every year.

The agency maintained a Police Athletic League (PAL) program until 2018. A decrease in volunteers caused the program to shut down. Currently there is a committee in place to brainstorm ways to get City youth to participate in athletic activities. Hockey is a prominent sport in the region, and an Ice rink is next door to the police department, that could potentially be a resource for such a program.

Another successful community outreach program of the agency is the presentation of active shooter training that initially began in schools, and is in its tenth year. By word of mouth throughout the City, corporations, businesses both large and small, churches, professional associations, and numerous other organizations began asking for the training.

The training was developed by a now 26-year veteran of the agency, who in talking about the program demonstrates his passion about it. He feels that the provision of the program is so critical, he accommodates businesses that have second and third shift sessions.

The format and structure is a classroom environment, and the emphasis encourages discussion, questions, and includes opportunities to explore how to react to and put oneself in the best position to survive, based on the run, hide, fight philosophy.” The presentation also includes the bluntness of the fact that one may not survive a situation. An important caveat is to have an individual plan based on run, hide, fight, and if your role is of a caretaker, assist others.

An additional component of the instruction includes what to expect when law enforcement arrives, to understand officers will conduct the business of neutralizing the shooter(s), in an aggressive manner, and how survivors should respond to officers. The participants are instructed how to act, recognizing that officers don’t necessarily know who may be accomplices of the identified shooter.

Requests for the program are at an all time high, including seventy-five presentations last year. In addition, the same organizations request to program when new employees , volunteers, or staffers come on board. The presentation clearly has a positive outcome for participants.

A significant outreach of the agency includes the assignment of a patrol officer as the liaison the Keene State College. This officer works in conjunction with the college administration to identify possible concerns of students as well as nearby residents. He attends weekly meetings at the college, and focuses much of his patrol activities in the area of the college, to include off campus student apartments. He reports that much of his focus is to reduce the number of noise complaints from residents, that result from partying students.

At the beginning of a semester, this officer participates in the orientation process, that includes parents and students. He presents on staying safe, how to report incidents to police, and the alcohol laws of New Hampshire. All is designed to reduce the opportunities for students to become victims or make poor judgement decisions. He reports that it is an ongoing effort, but he believes that it is helping.

Property and Evidence

The agency has a robust evidence storage area. It is well organized and clean. Evidence is tracked in the records management system. All high-risk items are secured separately in safes, and lockers inside a locked fence in the room. Clear evidence bags are used that provide an additional layer of security when conducting inventories, inspections, and audits.

Three smaller audits are conducted annually in addition to the required Appendix K audit. There have been no unresolved discrepancies during the accreditation period. The custodian has two back-up personnel who can assist as necessary.

Bicycles and large items are stored in another part of the building that includes a shed, secured by its own lock. The shed and bicycles are inside a locked chain link fence, and a steel cable connects all bicycles for another layer of security. The area is video monitored.

Vehicles that are evidence are stored inside a locked chain link fence in the City public works building. No public works personnel have access to the locked gate. The agency reports that the area is used infrequently.

Standards Issues:

N/A

Suggestions

The vehicle evidence storage location while video monitored is not an ideal security situation. The chain link fence is eight feet high, has been damaged from a large vehicle crashing into it, and large vehicles are higher than the fence. It would be very easy for someone to get inside.

Brainstorm other means to secure evidence vehicles that would be totally controlled by agency property staff.

COMMUNITY FEEDBACK AND REVIEW

Public Information Session

Only one resident Bradford Hutchinson spoke at the public information session, he is a 35 year resident of Keene and a frequent visitor of the downtown area. He spoke to the professionalism of agency personnel, citing the fact that he has interaction for years, both on the good side, and not so good side of law enforcement. He also reported observing how officers interact with people, showing respect even when taking someone into custody.

He reports that officers respond quickly to calls for service, that they are helpful, that they don't have "attitudes", and that he recommends the agency for reaccreditation.
